Language, Culture and Society in Korea – Sungdai Cho
BU Course Number: AAAS 311/LING 335/ANTH 380K (Gen Ed H), MTWTH 10:50-12:30
	This course provides the opportunity to become acquainted with Korean culture and society, reflected in its language, since the linguistic system of Korean and its daily uses are inseparably interwoven with the ever-evolving culture and society of the Korean people. It aims at a general understanding of Korean language and people, with emphasis on the culture and society. Attempts will be made to highlight the uniqueness of Korean cultural tradition in the broad context of East Asian civilization (Japanese and Chinese), as well as Western influence, especially of English

Korean Grammatical Structure – Sungdai Cho
BU Course Number: AAAS 218/LING 281A (Gen Ed J), MTWTH 1:10-2:50
	This course will provide an overview of the structure of the Korean language and discuss the relevant analyses of a certain structure. Based on the readings of the text, we will discuss the adequacy of the analyses including the generalizations and consider expanded sets of data. This course touches on the general areas of Korean linguistics, from Korean language background to sociolinguistics.
